

The mailships picture page

■ H. B. Irving, general manager of Castlemarine Travel Ltd., saying au revoir to Capt. P. St. Q. Beadon on the bridge of Pendennis Castle at Cape Town recently, after a highly successful shipboard conference held by top members of the Castlemarine Travel management. Conferences held on board the passenger-mailships on the South African coast are becoming a very popular part of the Union-Castle/Safmarine service. Picture: T. J. McNally.

■ On the occasion of Pendennis Castle's first call at St. Helena, Capt. P. St. Q. Beadon entertained the Governor and a few of the island's leading people to a reception on board the ship. From left to right, Capt. Beadon, Sir Alistair Forbes, Sir Thomas Oates (governor), and E. H. R. Womesley (director of Cayzer, Irene SA (Pty) Ltd). E. H. R. Womesley and Sir Alistair Forbes (who had been at school with the Governor) were travelling as passengers. Picture: Transocean Photographic.

■ D. A. Hawker, second officer, is the artist whose advertisement appeared in the last issue of GLANSMAN, offering paintings or drawings of B&C ships. He is seen here with a recent painting of Windsor Castle. He concentrates mainly on pictures of ships and the places they visit, describes himself as largely self-taught, and has won prizes in the College of the Sea competitions. Picture: Natal Mercury.

