

Table Bay pictured passing through the Dover Straits at the start of her maiden voyage.

Captain Stanley Catteroll (right) who commands Table Bay on her maiden voyage will be relieved by Captain Patrick Beadon (left).

Part of the engine control room console.

The Quiet Rooms on Table Bay.

One of the consoles on Table Bay's navigating bridge.

The officer's lounge is a very comfortably furnished room with furniture in colourful blue and green fabrics.

The Loadmaster Computer for cargo stress and loading calculations.

The spacious cabins on Table Bay are fully air-conditioned and comfortably furnished.

Mr. Robert Gemmill, chief engineer on Table Bay's maiden voyage.

Part of the Crew Lounge.

Mr. John Burney, chief engineer, who will relieve Mr. Gemmill.