Tea and buns for those who wish to be difficult. Other refreshments for those whose spirits are more in keeping with the nature of the occasion.

He received many replies in a similar vein which, he tells us, afforded him no little amusement.

Captain J. P. Smythe took the opportunity of Dr. Fairley's party to present him with an 8-transistor radio set and a cheque as a combined birthday and retirement present on behalf of himself, his officers and many other members of the ship's company.

During his presentation speech, which was well up to Captain Smythe's usual witty standard, the Captain said that when asked in London office how the Doctor looked after the crew, he always replied, "Fairley well," and he closed his speech by parodying an old

Latin tag and saying: "Hic Transistor Pretoria surgery."

Dr. Fairley made a short speech of thanks in reply, and expressed his surprise at, and appreciation of, this gesture of affection and goodwill by all his colleagues in the ship.
