

Cottee (Shaw Savill prize for academic progress);

Second year engineer cadet P. A. Cross (Shell Prize for personnel management);

Second year engineer cadet M. J. Love (Institute of Marine Engineers prize for all-round performance).

Congratulations also to Bruce Wheeler, engineer cadet studying at the Leith Nautical College, who was awarded the BP company prize for the cadet showing most progress during the two year course.

Also to C. Scriven, engineer cadet, on completion of his Phase 1 2nd year training at the Plymouth College of Further Education, and on his prize award for services to the college. Also to engineer cadet A. S. Henson, for his prize for good progress at the school.

C. Scriven was very much involved in the outside activities training for all the cadets at Plymouth and made an excellent contribution in this particular field. He was also involved in the "Ten-tors" which involves groups of people undertaking four days routing of the Dartmoor area.

City and Guilds

Congratulations to the following engineer officer cadets of the company, training at Plymouth College of Further Education, on the award of the City and Guilds Marine Engineering Technician's Certificate:

T. D. Dobbie, A. O. Jones, A. Mawdsley, N. C. Reed and G. Upham.

New Entrants

Second officer: J. R. C. MacIntosh; junior second engineer: J. H. Groves, L. Atkinson, S. F. Stallwood; fourth engineer: G. J. Schroeder, C. Richards, C. H. Reynolds; junior engineer: J. B. Wilberforce, S. V. Buckley, A. E. Williams, W. G. Fogarty, R. A. Roberts; second refrigeration engineer: A. E. Nellis; electrical engineer: M. B. Kessner, R. A. Rennie; junior electrical engineer: A. R. Peugelly, S. J. Peacock, D. McCulloch; PCO cargo: B. F. Williams, J. E. Berry, G. E. McGowan. A. J. May, N. H. E. Rigg (junior pursers); Miss P. Steele (housekeeper).

Seafarers' service

The annual national service for seafarers is to be held in St. Paul's Cathedral, Wednesday October 23 at 17.45. The preacher will be the Bishop of London, the Rt. Rev. Gerald Ellison.

Windsor Castle's 100 up

When Windsor Castle recorded 100 voyages this summer in 14 years' service, it was surprising how many of her crew could claim the honour of serving with her from her maiden voyage.

Quite a few can claim to have made 98 or 99 voyages, including (in no particular order) the following: J. Ley, deckman; R. Jones, leading seaman; F. Raats, officers' steward in charge; W. Miller, first class head waiter; A. Brierley, R. Rumbolds, B. Dawes and P. Morrison, first class assistant stewards; J. Coombes, extra second baker; J. Skene, bandsman; J. Reynolds, first class deck steward; B. Morgan, first class bedroom steward; Miss M. Greening, head stewardess; R. Tarrant, assistant barman, and E. Sheath, baggage steward.

■ Above: Reina del Mar is associated with the South African MOTHs organisation, and has a shellhole (branch) of several years' standing. During cruise 120 a passenger, D. Dowie presented the ship with a plaque he had brought from Pretoria, showing the Pretoria "OUMA" shellhole crest, the head of Lady Smuts. Above: presentation to Capt. A. Sillars in the captain's day cabin.

■ Below: R. C. Miller (manager, hotel services, ships) is president of the Association of Marine Catering Superintendents. At the Nautical Catering College in Liverpool recently he presented the association's award to the year's best students on the preliminary nautical catering course. Also in the picture: J. Nicolson, H. Hambling (chairman of college governors) and D. Hall, principal of the college.

■ Above: officers and passengers who attended the presentation. Left to right: W. Maitland, first engineer, Mrs. I. Griffiths, Mrs. Sharples, Mrs. Dowie, J. Ward, chief engineer, D. Dowie, Capt. Sillars, M. Dyer, chief purser, Mrs. Lewis, Professor Louw and J. Smith, chief officer. Both presentation pictures by Transocean Photography.

■ Below, also at Liverpool: presenting a cheque to C. Mead, a purser/catering officer with Ellerman City Liners, for the best thesis on "The future role of the catering department at sea." Looking on is J. Nicolson of BP Tankers, who is honorary secretary of the marine catering superintendents' association. Pictures: Kaye Photography.

